The whole number of Prench abroad is stated Houses, Lands, Tenements, &c. 575,000 English and Scotchmen bave suiterated. and 736,000 frishmen. The internal morement is equally small. More than 33,500,000, or 88 ner cent, of all the inhabitants, live id the nlace where they were born. And this is a datural consequence of the agricultural character of the population. No human being is so immorable as a small landed proprietor. This class of people may in some respects deserve the effection with which they are regarded by a certain class of political economists, but they are the neavest approach to the condition suggested by the vivid imagination of the American young lady who was asked to dance, and consented on the ground that the had sat and sat and sat till she had night took root." A very large part of the French people seem to be so far approximating to the of the whole population. or pearly 20,000,000 Apply to men and women, are dependent upon agriculture: That is, nearly as many as the whole ponulation of England and Wales. More than half of the unicultural population, egnin consists of people in tw EB Hongkong, 12th January, 1865. 9,000,000 persons thus employed, of whom shout W Detached residence with the adjacent half are mon a whereas the while number of men Grounds at Pokicolum, now occupied by Mesare, and women actually employed in agriculture in Sismosan & Co. England and Wales, is only just over 2.000,000, out of a total population of 20,000,000. While the occumations classed as "industrial" occupy in England twice as many men as agricultural in France they do not occupy mileh more than half as many. In fact, France is one of the most agricultural countries in European The nroverbing immobility of the agricultural amind is at course intensified where every man her land r his own, and where his affection for his land the atrongoat passion of which, har is comable Politically, this farcibly illustrates the hold which n certain kind of conservatisms must, have unon the country. The predominant element of the penulation is that which in all doubtries of orlehes. a hatred for change as change, and unly requires to be allowed, like Candide, to cultivate ita cabthe country districts apparently permit ted Paris to indulge in barrioades and revolutions. simply because they did not know, and could not i bring to bear upon one point, their own mowields strength. The Empire involved a revolation and a practical application of hig truth ; it implies the anbording tion of the revolutionary energy of the towns to the dorged determination of the country to be quiet shirt many as but It is the more curious to see that, at the sam time, the towns are rapidly growing at the ex-

The town poonlation has in fact, increased at a rute equal to the average English rate of increase whilst the rural populations actually diminished from 1848 to 1856; and although it has lately again in crossed has not yet recovered the level reached in 1846.—Saturday Review.

Legal Education. having a two-storled detached Granite Godown. The Telegraph laments that the har, especially the common law bar, is now so overcrowded. I is common to speak with ridicule of the briefless harrister: but if the private life of some of these men were revealed, it would present a shocking history of fruitless struggle against disappointment and abject poverty. Pride and self-vennet generally prevent the sufferings of the olass from heing generally known; but occasionally the veil (lookes Rooms, etc., also Stabling and Garden in Harbour, or their Cargoes is lifted. Some of these unfortunate gentlemen grounds situated next the residence of Captain are in a state but little removed from actual Thomsett, West Point, between Bonbain and sta vetion, and would, be comparatively rich if Ponkfolian Boads of Inland Lat No. 757, Forthey could tearn journeymen's wages. Now it is terms apply to Mr. Thes. It is a waste of so much intellect and energy, which pught if nossible to be devoted to some neeful purpose. The men who consume their lives in miserable inactivity at Westminster Hall, or the dreariest chambers of the Temple those which clients never visit are certainly above the average in their intellectual attainments, and it they were set to some profitable work they could perform a large share in the world's business. There can he no doubt that the number of students called to the har with the intention of practising is for larger than the actual requirement; and that excess of supply over demand is due to many causes, It irrises partly from overweening ambition, partly from fact that the profession is a lottery, in which the prizes are ablended, and the number of blanks is inadequately known. Another great source of the evil is the system of pro- [1:HAT Large Isolated Dwelling house known as miscuous admission adopted by the Inns of Court.
